Opportunities Generated Through Comprehensive Reform

- Strategic planning process engaged faculty, administrators and others in substantive conversations about goals and purpose of developmental education
 - Stakeholders report ongoing increased communication within and across colleges
- Emergence of college-level and statewide formative assessment and continuous improvement efforts
 - Faculty are reviewing data, honing curricula, and refining elements of course structure
 - Change in faculty role makes pedagogy visible
 - Developmental Math Implementation Support Team (DMIST) provided constructive feedback and planning

DEVELOPMENTAL MATH IMPLEMENTATION SUPPORT TEAM

1. How have community colleges in Virginia implemented the developmental math redesign?
2. What challenges are colleges facing in implementing the developmental math redesign?
3. What college practices and policies related to the math redesign appear promising?
4. What resources can the VCCS provide to support continuous improvement of the developmental math redesign?

Developmental Education in Virginia's Community Colleges

Developmental Education and Achieve 2015

In support of the system's strategic plan, Achieve 2015, and student success, Virginia's Community Colleges are engaged in an extensive redesign of developmental mathematics and English programs.

This is a multi-pronged initiative and links here will provide information on what is evolving in developmental education throughout the system. As this is a work in progress, we welcome your feedback.
